INTRODUCTION

As part of the Manitoba Government's International Youth Year initiative, the International Youth Year office, in conjunction with provincial government departments, has put together an inventory of youth programs and services.

This inventory is being made available to groups, agencies and individuals working with youth. It provides up-to-date information on the range of youth programs and services offered by the provincial government.

Each entry in the inventory has been classified according to one of the following three categories: "Youth Specific", "Percentage of Youth Participation" or "Of Particular Importance to Youth". The percentages that appear are approximate figures. Where a percentage was not available tor a non-youth-specific entry, the category, "Of Particular Importance to Youth" was used.

Further details on each program can be obtained by contacting the Manitoba government office listed. Where possible, a contact name for the program has also been included.

August, 1985.

Department: Manitoba Community Services

Branch: Probation

Contact Name: Nancy Barkwell (Remand Attendance Centre)

Address/Phone: Building 3, 139 Tuxedo Blvd., Winnipeg, Manitoba R3N 0H6
Phone: 945-7076

Description: The goal of Probation Services is to allow appropriate adult and young offenders to serve their sentences within the community. Probation screens young offenders (between the ages of 12 and 18) and diverts some from formal proceedings into alternative programs, conducts pre-disposition investigations and reports for the Courts, supervises offenders placed on Probation, provides a community-based open custody program (for young offenders), and provides some preventive and volunteer programming. The Branch also coordinates program planning, monitoring and evaluation, budgetting and staffing, and ensures uniform standards.

Program Benefits: The program recognizes both the need to protect the public and the need to rehabilitate offenders in a manner that respects individual rights, encourages community participation and provides culturally-appropriate programming.

Target Groups: There are two main referral sources for Probation clients - the Police and Attorney-General's Department in the case of persons diverted out of the Court system (i.e., into restitution and reconciliation programs), and the Courts in the case of persons on Probation, or young offenders sentenced to open custody.

Delivery and Application Procedures: Services are delivered on a regional basis by 15 field teams in different locations throughout the Province (see list below).

Duration: On-going

Number of Participants: There are, on average, 10,600 young persons and 6,200 adults under Court ordered supervision.

Special Information: The Young Offenders Act (Canada), which came into effect April 1, 1984, has resulted in a number of new program initiatives and an expansion of existing programs through Probation for young offenders (which are reflected in the description above): (1) Community-Based Policy -- a commitment to providing services in the home communities of offenders as much as possible; (2) Increasing the number of Youth Justice Committees -- volunteer community organizations that offer such services as diversion from formal criminal justice proceedings, victim-offender mediation and apology, restitution agreements, and other community service options; (3) Community Service Options -- work and services imposed as a sentence by the Court or undertaken instead of formal criminal proceedings; (4) Review Boards -- volunteer community bodies related to Youth Justice Committees that can review custodial dispositions and recommend movement from secure to open custody or discharge; (5) Provincial Director -- a new office established to guide the development and administration of community-based young offender services.

Those wishing to offer their services as Volunteer Probation Officers can apply at any of the Winnipeg district or Manitoba rural offices (see list below). Applications may also be sent to the Probation Director at 170 Doncaster Blvd., Winnipeg, Manitoba R3N 1X9/945-7891.
